Baptist Health Care Leadership Institute Parent Hospital CEO

Presented 2008 Award of Honor

PENSACOLA, FL- Alfred G. Stubblefield, president and CEO, Baptist Health Care, accepted the 2008 Award of Honor on April 7, 2008, during the American Hospital Association's annual meeting in Washington, DC. Baptist Health Care is the parent company of The Baptist Health Care Leadership Institute, a consulting company built on the experience gained during the system's culture change and turnaround in 1996.

Stubblefield was chosen for his outstanding contributions to improving the health status of communities and the nation. This award recognizes his exemplary contributions to the health and well-being of people through leadership on major health policies and social initiatives.

Stubblefield has been with Baptist since 1985, and has served in his current position since 1999. Before coming to Baptist, he worked in hospitals in Mississippi and Tennessee. He has served on the AHA Board of Trustees and Executive Committee and is currently on the board of the AHA's Health Research and Educational Trustee. He is currently serving on the VHA and Florida Hospital Association Board of Trustees, is a Fellow of the American College of Healthcare Executives, has served on the board of FHA, and is former Chairman of the Association of Voluntary Hospitals of Florida.

"Al's achievements in quality of care and his willingness to share that knowledge have bettered health care nationwide," said Rich Umbdenstock, AHA president and CEO.

Founded in 2002, The Baptist Health Care Leadership Institute is a consulting firm specializing in guiding health systems through culture change to service excellence. They have coached more than 8900 healthcare professionals from 50 states and abroad.
